What else can the computer running the machine be used for?

Imported User 6 - 2019-04-29 - in FAQ's

CNC controls require critical timing. When a computer has been chosen to be used as a machine controller, it should be dedicated to that task / not used for anything else. Adding additional software and processes to a machine controller can adversely affect performance and introduce problems. This especially includes third-party antivirus software, which can interfere in a number of ways (even preventing licensing!).
